BRITAIN FOR ULSTER IN 3-CORNERED PACT

Sinn Fein Awaits Developments From Premier's Diplomatic Moves.
KEEP HIM FROM U. S.
Negotiations May Be Extended Over Months Instead of Weeks.

CHAMBERLAIN IN PLEA

All Parties to Controversy Must Make Concessions to Others, He Says.
LONDON, Nov. 14 (Associated Press).—The negotiations among British, Sinn Fein and Ulster officials regarding the future of Ireland have now entered a stage in which the negotiators are talking of intermittent conferences extending over months instead of weeks.
The chief interest in this possibility has at the moment is that it promises to make impossible an early visit of Prime Minister Lloyd George to Washington, as he has been hoping to do all along.
This development is assuming great importance in English public and official spheres, because the Washington conference has suddenly attained proportions in British eyes of an event of tremendous and absorbing significance.
Counter proposals for an Irish settlement to those made by the Ulster Cabinet last week were forwarded to the Ulsterites this evening by the British representatives, informing the Ulsterites that their alternative proposal was not acceptable. No further meeting between the British and Ulster delegates has yet been arranged.
It now seems that the Premier's diplomacy must be directed to bringing Ulster into a three-cornered agreement. In the meantime, the Sinn Fein will sit on the sidelines and await developments. "The northerners are the bad boys now," remarked one of the Sinn Fein delegates.
Ulster's watchword is "No surrender." But some of the newspapers find comfort in the thought that this is the first step of all in the bargain making. The crux of the difficulty rests in the Sinn Fein's claim that Ireland must be a governmental unit, as opposed to Ulster's claim that if Ireland is to have a dominion status Ulster must be under independent rule.
The Ulstermen attach special value to the new powers just conferred on the Ulster Parliament for controlling their own finances and police; their newspapers constantly remind the Prime Minister of his promises not to coerce Ulster. Austen Chamberlain, the Government leader in the House of Commons, in a letter which he wrote to-day, specifically sets forth his position as follows: "Like all my Unionist colleagues, I have repeatedly said that I would not be a party to the coercion of Ulster. By that pledge we stand; it is common ground to the whole Unionist party. The Prime Minister has given the same pledge, and neither he nor we will depart from our word."
"Peace is our greatest need. A million and three-quarters of our people are without work, trade is stagnant, confidence is lacking. On the result of the present negotiations depend issues of peace and war in these islands, perhaps the future peace of the world."
"I should hold myself unworthy of the honor conferred upon me by the Unionist party if in such circumstances I did not use my utmost efforts to secure a just and honorable peace. If peace is to be secured all parties to this ancient

MAY SOON TELEPHONE OVER OCEAN, SAYS MARCONI AID

Only Obstacle to London-New York Service Is Great Expense Involved, but France and Britain Extend Communication With Ships and Holland.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK HERALD. Copyright, 1921, by THE NEW YORK HERALD. New York Herald Bureau. Paris, Nov. 14. The radio-telephone experiments, being carried on by the French Government between the steamship Paris of the French Line and the Ministry of Posts and Telegraphs here, have met with unexpected results. Although it was feared that the ocean air currents would not give results as satisfactory as those obtained in the United States, M. Girardeau, a technical expert of the Ministry, who is now en route to the Washington conference, has succeeded in transmitting a long wireless telephone message to Minister Laffont over a distance of nearly 1,000 miles. M. Girardeau's voice was heard with great distinctness.
It is hoped to repeat the experiment twice daily, and if it proves feasible all French ships will be equipped with apparatus strong enough to keep in wireless telephone contact either with French or American ports during the entire voyage across the Atlantic.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK HERALD. Copyright, 1921, by THE NEW YORK HERALD. New York Herald Bureau. London, Nov. 14. In connection with Mr. Marconi's statement as to the rapid progress of wireless telephone, published in THE NEW YORK HERALD, it is announced that the first commercial wireless telephone service between two countries will be started shortly between London and Holland if the post office grants a permit. The service will be via land and wire to Southwold, thence across the North Sea via wireless to Zandvoort, thence via land to Rotterdam and Amsterdam. An official of the Marconi house has talked successfully over this route. The Amsterdam Bureau already sends quotations several times daily over the wireless telephone, mainly to Holland banks and these reports are heard clearly here.
The only regular wireless telephone service on the British Isles is that between Mersey Docks and Bar Lightship, a distance of a dozen miles off Liverpool. A Marconi official said that the only obstacle to wireless telephone service between London and New York was the great expense involved. He said that a much more powerful current is needed to convey the delicate modulations of the human voice across the Atlantic than for transmitting dots and dashes, but insisted that such a service was no idle dream of the future.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—"Big Tim" Murphy, formerly State Representative, gang leader and president of the gas workers' and street sweepers' unions, was sentenced to six years in Leavenworth penitentiary and fined $360,000 by Judge Kenesaw M. LANDRU TRIAL CAUSES SUICIDE

Crazed by Evidence, Reporter Goes to Hotel and Shoots Himself.

DEFENCE DERIDES POLICE

"Bluebeard" Signs Contract to Appear in Music Hall if Acquitted.
VERSAILLES, Nov. 14 (Associated Press).—The second week of the trial of Landru, the alleged "Bluebeard of Gambais," accused of the murder of his ten fiancées, opened with a tragic incident.
Vital d'Arzac, a Toulouse newspaperman covering the trial, left the court room in the middle of this afternoon's session, telling his comrades the case was driving him crazy. He went to his hotel and shot himself in the head with a revolver, dying almost immediately.
Last week the direct examination was completed in the cases of four of the women Landru is accused of murdering. To-day Judge Gilbert resumed direct examination of the prisoner regarding the disappearance of Mme. Colomb, the sixth of Landru's alleged victims. Mme. Colomb was for a long time a resident of Gaudonville.
Landru assumed the offensive against several of the witnesses, who were cross-examined by him. The prisoner brought out the fact that Mme. Colomb, his child, a male acquaintance and her cousin all have disappeared and that the police have not been able to find any trace of them.
If an act charged with murdering the whole family," declared the prisoner, "yet the police are as helpless in finding them as they are in finding any of my so-called victims."
Landru has signed a contract to appear in a monologue in a local music hall in the event that he is acquitted. He is to receive 2,500 francs weekly for his work.

BALFOUR'S ORATORY RECALLED BY VIRGINIANS

Statesman Found Inspiration in a Mint Julep.
Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD. New York Herald Bureau. Washington, D. C., Nov. 14. I. Those fortunate enough to attend tomorrow's session of the Conference on Limitation of Armament will hear no mean orator when Arthur J. Balfour arises to present his Government's answer to Secretary Hughes.
In 1917 Mr. Balfour addressed the citizens of Fredericksburg, Va., from the observation platform of a Pullman, while en route to Washington from Richmond. After leaving Richmond hospitable Virginians insisted that he not cross the border of the Old Dominion without tasting a mint julep. Mr. Balfour liked the julep so well he suggested a second. He had just finished number two when the train pulled into Fredericksburg and he was asked to say a word to the crowd.
Virginians love oratory and are good judges of it. All who heard Mr. Balfour speak at Fredericksburg say he was not only eloquent but brilliant.

DIVORCE IS GRANTED TO RAIDING WIFE

Mrs. Arthur G. Johnson Led Party to Flat Where She Found Husband.

JUDGE UPHELD ACTION

Ruled Wife Has the Right to Go Anywhere That Her Spouse Does.
Mrs. Arthur Gail Johnson, whose raid on the flat of Miss Alberta Broome, 41 Bennett avenue, to find her husband, was upheld recently by a Magistrate in Washington Heights Court, who decided a woman has a right to go anywhere her husband is, won her suit for divorce when a jury before Justice J. M. Tierney found Johnson guilty of misconduct.
The raid was July 20, it was testified, and was made by Mrs. Johnson, her lawyer, Theodore B. Hoyer, two women friends, and private detectives. Following the raid Miss Broome got a summons for Hoyer, Mrs. Johnson and others, which the Magistrate dismissed after a hearing. Features of the raid, according to testimony yesterday, included an attempt by Johnson to get his revolver from under a mattress, which Mrs. Johnson foiled by grasping the weapon and running outdoors with it.
Other witnesses testified to seeing Johnson and Miss Broome together in the Johnson Iron Works, Spuyten Duyvil, where Miss Broome was formerly a nurse, and to removing, at Johnson's orders, furniture from his home at Spuyten Duyvil Parkway and Independence avenue, The Bronx, to Miss Broome's home while Mrs. Johnson was in a hospital.
The Johnsons were married in 1916. The Johnson Iron Works was founded by the defendant's grandfather, Isaac Johnson, who left a large fortune. The defendant is said to have a reversionary interest in several million dollars left in trust by his father. Johnson was represented by counsel, but made no defence.
